

APPENDIX 14

Derbyshire Times's post

it's a lovely idea not everyone wants to go to the pub, so to be able to have a social glass of wine with Dinner is a bonus

17 h Like Reply

A more relevant point - would the Derbyshire Times be as interested in any other new business starting out if it wasn't replacing a closed Newsagent - obviously selling newspapers including Derbyshire Times 🤔🤔

1 d Like Reply

Make a good coffee shop and charity shop

1 d Like Reply

Hahhahahaha

Write a comment... GIF 😊

Derbyshire Times's post

Yes why not they do it on the continent all the time the uk seem to thi.k alcohol is to get pissed you dont see the locals in spain etc rolling round bladdered the social drink from young ages xx most of them would prefer a coffee wine is for meal times there xx

1 d Like Reply

it's a lovely idea not everyone wants to go to the pub, so to be able to have a social glass of wine with Dinner is a bonus

17 h Like Reply

A more relevant point - would the Derbyshire Times be as interested in any other new business starting out if it wasn't replacing a closed Newsagent - obviously selling newspapers including Derbyshire

Write a comment... GIF 😊

Derbyshire Times's post

I can see it doing well. Personally I'm not a coffee drinker, I've seen the Costa machine in the local one stop does a decent trade and there's nothing in this part of town to bring locals together. Hopefully the alcohol licence will be to make coffee liquers and not a bar down there.

1 d Like Reply

Why not? In Europe it is common place for a coffee shop to serve alcohol. When I was in Paris people were drinking wine and just chilling out. People always think drinking is about getting pissed unfortunately.

1 d Like Reply

Yes why not they do it on the continent all the time the uk seem to thi.k alcohol is to get pissed you dont see the locals in spain etc rolling

Write a comment... GIF 😊

Derbyshire Times's post

Wow brilliant idea, it's been an eye sore for so many years! Perfect spot for it in my opinion... big up to the people doing it 👍

19 h Like Reply

I start and finish my run near near there. So I could get a drink straight after my run, making my run a bit pointless.

1 d Like Reply

Pleased to see that it's coming back into use. I hope it gets planning, opens and is able to provide a long asset for the local community.

1 d Like Reply

I can see it doing well. Personally I'm not a coffee drinker, I've seen the Costa machine in the local one stop

Write a comment... GIF 😊

A local business man opening a business for local people to use. What ever happened to community spirit. It's an eye sore that's hopefully going to be a great asset to the community where locals can meet with friends and children in the day and couples/ friends meet for a drink or 3 🍷. No one cared when the shop was licensed for alcohol and given to kids to underage drink on the front porches or street corners! Give the guy a chance to gain a welcome change and community environment. Cause after all this isolating I for one will be making more time to spend with friends going out whether that be coffee or alcohol. Time change for the better

1 d Like Reply 5

Great news. Pleased to see that someone is taking an interest in

Write a comment... GIF 😊

Great news. Pleased to see that someone is taking an interest in reviving this part of the the town. It's about time someone brought some life and style to this road just as what happened with Chatsworth Road. Hopefully the first of many to bring some taste to the the area. Will look forward to some positive transformation. I agree that local businesses should look to flourish throughout Chesterfield. Good call.

1 d Like Reply 5

Daft thing to do if it coffee and other hot drinks and milkshakes different but alcohol no Wouldn't sell alcohol in coffee shops

2 d Like Reply 1

Write a comment... GIF 😊

Wow.. Can't wait .. I love meeting my friends for a spot of lunch or coffee and catch up .. McDonald's doesn't really fit the bill. There's nothing around there like that . Can't see why anyone would have a problem . It looks like a deprived and forgotten area.. Let's breathe a bit of life and regeneration for after lockdown .

1 d Like Reply 4

Sounds very similar to the Walton dam nation at Walton shops. Folks whined to start with not really understanding what it would be and it's now well established and doing well. Folk seemed to think some sort of Xanadu replacement was opening without reading what it was actually going to be.

1 d Like Reply 6

Write a comment... GIF 😊

Derbyshire Times's post

I can see it doing well. Personally I'm not a coffee drinker, I've seen the Costa machine in the local one stop does a decent trade and there's nothing in this part of town to bring locals together. Hopefully the alcohol licence will be to make coffee liquers and not a bar down there.

3 h Like Reply 2

Why not? In Europe it is common place for a coffee shop to serve alcohol. When I was in Paris people were drinking wine and just chilling out. People always think drinking is about getting pissed unfortunately.

2 h Like Reply 1

They had pubs on that road that were closed and turned into shops, now they want to do the reverse to the shops. What a crock

Write a comment... GIF 😊

Derbyshire Times's post

Blah blah blah slate a new buisness blah blah blah luckily for the chap/ Lady in question none of you fools will be there, probably the same people complaining of shops being closed in town aswell. FOOLS. The markets showing clothes & luxuries are bought online so unless you can get a fresh coffee/pint delivered expect to see more 😊

2 h Like Reply 3

I start and finish my run near near there. So I could get a drink straight after my run, making my run a bit pointless.

3 h Like Reply

I can see it doing well. Personally I'm not a coffee drinker, I've seen the Costa machine in the local one stop

Write a comment... GIF 😊

Great Idea, many people work locally and train at the St John centre just down the road. They have to find somewhere to get snack lunch and drink. This would serve them all nicely, make good use of the disused shop. Others might wish to have refreshments and if the staff monitor the customers and use their power of controlling who drink, eats and visits if they offend anyone. This could be the real "Roys Rolls > CORONATION STREET or Café as in EMMERDALE or EAST ENDERS television soaps .

2 h Like Reply  3

Put it back to a house don't need another alcohol establishment or another coffee shop after lockdown there are going to be enough shops closed

3 h Like Reply

 Write a comment...

All comments ▾

Honestly the moans from people. It's currently empty and looks an eyesore. They are going to be a cafe that serves food and also licences so you can have a glass of wine etc with it. It won't be a pub and they will only play background music. Having been born on Lord Roberts Road which runs at the side of this i'm glad some new business is coming to the area. The DT would do well to stop stirring up trouble like a wannabe tabloid and actually stick to reporting the news. I know Paper newspapers are all but going out of business but i do see more articles that are sensationalized in this once great newspaper. Just report the news well and stop trying to provoke reaction.

2 h Like Reply  4

Great Idea, many people work locally

 Write a comment...

